

The Arts Council and University College Cork (UCC) invite applications from mid-career and established writers for Writer in Residence for the calendar year 2024

The Arts Council Writer in Residence programme was established to provide a stimulating environment for the resident for the writer, and afford a degree of financial support to concentrate on their own practice. Additionally, the residency brings energy and dynamism to the university, and allows students and faculty to engage with a practicing writer for a concentrated period.

1.1 About the residency

The Writer in Residence will be engaged for the calendar year 2024 and will be situated in the School of English and Digital Humanities programme at UCC, with the opportunity to engage with the wider campus.

The residency will be divided into two parts:

1. From January to August 2024, the writer will be supported to concentrate his or her own practice.
2. From September to December 2024, the Writer in Residence will be supported to engage with students and staff. This programme of engagement will be designed by the resident writer, in consultation with the faculty of the university, and could include focused teaching, workshops, mentoring, public events or other activities which bring new energy to the creative writing programme. Contact time with staff and students during this time will be capped at 4 hours per week, and the writer will not be expected to deliver core curriculum.

The fee to the Writer in Residence is €30,000, with the Arts Council contributing €20,000 and the university €10,000. UCC will provide the Writer in Residence with a dedicated space, where they can conduct their own creative practice, within the university. UCC will also support the residency administratively.

The entire fee will be paid to the writer directly by the Arts Council. It will be paid in two instalments, with a final report by the writer at the conclusion of the residency.

1.2 Arts Council – UCC Writer in Residence

The Writer in Residence at UCC would teach a one semester (11 week), two hour, weekly Creative Writing MA workshop, of their own devising and working within their own genre/s. The writer in residence would be expected to organise a public reading or event, and would be facilitated to offer a one-off workshop for the wider UCC community.
